SESSION OF THE TRUSTEES.

Improvement of Spruce Street Is Stopped.

Trustees Frame Reports in Favor of the Adoption of a Fire-Alarm System.

A regular meeting of the Board of Trustees was held last night. Street Superintendent Chick reported that $120 had been expended in renovating the pound. There was some discussion regarding the conduct of the Pound, but in view of the fact that Poundmaster Hughes has not yet completed his arrangements the matter was dropped.

Chairman Frame of the Fire and Water Committee reported that the Telephone company offers to place a fire alarm system in operation for $60 per month. No action was taken.

Fire Chief Kenny was instructed to furnish an inventory of the apparatus in charge of the various companies.

The North Berkeley Fire Company requested that its telephone alarm system be increased at an expenditure not to exceed $15. Granted.

Street Superintendent Chick reported progress on the work of utilizing the water at Dwight way and in South Berkeley.

A discussion over the water supply then ensued. Trustee Frame stated that he considered it the duty of the Board to take steps toward the protection of the city in regard to the anticipated water famine.

Street Superintendent Chick said that an official of the Contra Costa Water Company had told him that if necessary the Company would probably pump water to this city.

John Hinkle remarked that the Alameda Company has already put in one-third the number of meters, with the result that the supply of water in the reservoir is rapidly increasing.

The ordinance changing the name of a part of Bristol street to Hearst avenue was finally passed.

Pauline Bockelmann of Lorin filed an application for a saloon license. The bonds were approved, and the application was referred to the License Committee.

A resolution repealing a resolution of intention for gutter grating was adopted.

Mary E. Burnham withdrew her protest against an assessment for street work on Grove street.

Bids on the construction of a tower on the Beacon fire house and the extension of the building were opened as follows: Mohr & Seagle, $850; G. E. Davis & Co., $865.90; Phil Sheridan, $760. Mr. Sheridan was awarded the contract.

The following bids for macadamizing Benvenue avenue were presented: J. G. Cochran, macadamizing per square foot, 5c; concrete gutters per square foot, 9c; J. J. Dunn, 5c; 12c; Oakland Paving Company, 5c; 9 19-20c. Cochran was given the contract.

Following were the bids for grading Russell street: Easton & Wilson, grading per cubic yard, 19c; curbing per linear foot, 8 1/2c; W. J. Schmidt, 31c, 10c; George Stutz, 26c, 10c; R. J. Carter, 20c, 9c. Easton & Wilson were the fortunate bidders.

A petition to change the location of the upper end of Maguire street was referred to the Street Committee.

REPORTS OF TOWN OFFICERS.

Well Water Caused Typhoid Fever Cases.

Fire Chief Kenney's Report for the First Quarter of the Year.

Health Officer H. N. Rowell last night submitted the following report to the Town Trustees:

"Gentlemen: Much concern regarding the prevalence of contagious diseases has been manifested by some fearful residents of the Town, and I consider that a report of the sanitary condition of the Town may well be considered and fears set at rest.

"There exists at present in the Town four cases of typhoid fever, these being distributed through the various wards of the Town.

"At least three of these cases may be directly traced to the use of well water. One of these was contracted in the country. Another is attributable to the use of water from a tributary of Strawberry Creek, and a third has been by reputable citizens considered due to the condition of the closets of the Kellogg School.

These closets, as you will remember, have long been the subject of our criticisms, and will so remain until replaced by those of sanitary design.

"It is unnecessary to comment upon the absolute danger from drinking unboiled well water, and to suggest a probable increase in our sick and mortality record, if the season's shortage in water necessitates a too strict economy in flushing sewers."

The report of Fire Chief Kenney for the quarter ending with March 31st, giving a complete record of repairs that were made during the first three months of the year and of goods supplied to the various fire companies. The report also contained the following:

"I would respectfully ask your honorable body to furnish trucks with chemical fire extinguishers, as most trucks have none. They are necessary, as a large part of the town has not got necessary mains and hydrants. I would also ask your honorable body to look into the matter of mains and hydrants as the great losses from fires have occurred when water could not be secured and when water could be had the loss has been small."

The goods delivered to the different companies are now in good working order, and the people of Berkeley will receive the benefits.

"I will close my report by asking that your honorable body put in an alarm system as soon as possible. The town is in need of one, as there is no way of locating a fire only after a fire has had some headway."

Marshall Lloyd's report for the month of March showed receipts for licenses as follows: Saloons $400, solicitors $45, peddlers $15, telephone $25, laundries $7.50, general business $102, dog licenses $4.

The summarized report of the clerk for the past quarter is as follows:

General fund—Balance on hand January 1st $14,341.20, receipts $17,875.30, disbursements $9,452.70, balance on hand April 1st $6,763.89.

Street fund—Balance on hand January 1st $3,312.61, disbursements $1,675.75, balance on hand April 1st $1,636.86.

Sewer bond fund—Balance on hand January 1st $3132.29, disbursements $1882.50, balance on hand April 1st $1749.79.

Electric light bond fund—Balance on hand January 1st $2572.77, disbursements $1950, balance on hand April 1st $1622.77.

Street opening fund—January 1st and April 1st balanced (no receipts or payments), $722.26.

Library fund—Balance on hand January 2nd $3186.50, disbursements $1935.45, balance on hand April 1st $1251.15.

School fund—Balance on hand January 1st $3379.73, receipts $181 disbursements $4611.35, balance on hand April 1st $2949.40. Total balance of all funds, $15,281.16.

A Military Company.

It is stated upon good authority that the members of Paul Revere Council No. 29, Jr. O. G. A. M., held an informal meeting after their regular meeting on Saturday last, at which it was resolved to form a military company and tender its services to the United States war department in the event of hostilities between the United States and Spain.

An Informal Dinner.

An informal dinner was given at the home of Judge John Garber, Claremont, Thursday evening, at which a few young friends of Miss Juliet Garber were the guests. Among those present, beside the hostess, were Miss Agnes Duff, Frank Stringham, Edgar Rickard and Charles Sedgwick.

Klondike a Fake.

Thomas Roust who started for Klondike several months ago has written to his brother, Aureon Roust of Lorin, that the Klondike excitement is baseless, in fact that it is a fake and that he will soon start on the return trip from Skagway.

Again at Peace.

The marital troubles of John Kelso, the well-known street contractor, and his wife have been adjusted and Mrs. Kelso has abandoned her divorce proceedings.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The jury in the case of James Overall, who was arrested some time ago for keeping a place where liquor is sold, was dismissed this morning by Judge Cliff on a challenge to panel. Cliff says that he will hereafter dismiss every jury which is summoned exclusively from Berkeley. The case will be reset and the next jury will be summoned by an Oakland constable.

Young Republicans.

The Young Men's Republican Club will hold a meeting tomorrow night in Golden Street Hall. William Fair Hill will be the speaker of the evening.

A Sprained Ankle.

Harry Squires stepped on a plank last Sunday, slipped and sprained his ankle.

IMPORTANT.

On May 1st we will remove to San Francisco—corner Geary Street and Grant Avenue—(formerly occupied by the City of Paris Dry Goods House). Our stock will be increased in all departments, making it one of the largest west of Chicago. Until removal we offer PIANOS, MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, MANDOLINS, GUITARS, Etc., at the lowest, cut prices ever seen in Oakland. Thirty pianos to be sold at sacrifice prices. CLARK, WISE & CO., 1108 Broadway.

BRADLEY ON LITERATURE.

Why Prose Types Are the Latest to Develop.

Oratory Seems to Be a Lost Art. She Is Charged With Defrauding and the Novel Shows Signs of Decay.

Professor Bradley delivered a lecture on the above subject yesterday afternoon. He said in part: "The late development of prose types is surprising to the student. In all literatures prose types are the latest to develop. The reason for this is that man seeks an exquisite vehicle for his exquisite thoughts and does not see the value of prose until later.

There are three types of prose. The earliest is oratory, then the novel and lastly the essay. Oratory seems to be a lost art now and the novel shows some signs of decay.

There are three ancient types of essay—oration, history and dialogue, the latter being the most literary. These were all of a personal style, being generally delivered before an audience. The dialogue corresponds more nearly to our modern essay in subject and treatment than the other types. The direct fore-runners of our modern essays are the "Moral and Lives of Plutarch," in the first century of our era. He deals with his subject directly and in the style of the modern essay.

From Plutarch to Montaigne in the last of the Sixteenth Century there was no prose that could be called a literary form. Montaigne's works were the first great modern spirited prose. He is an example of high genius and broadest sympathies. He was really a modern writer and his influence is constantly growing.

Bacon is the first of our English essayists. Montaigne's influence on Bacon was the influence of one high genius upon another. It led him to branch out for himself, not to imitate. His form expression and treatment is a return almost to the classical. His style is severe and crystalline. His topics are distinctly ethical. The thought is lofty.

Addison was the next essayist. He was the first to perceive that prose is proper material for fine art and he proceeded to use it for that purpose. He recorded a superficial observation. We pass on a hundred years and come to the beginning of magazines. These offered enormous possibilities for the essay and were taken advantage of.

The essay is a prose poem confined to lyrical motives. The typical essay has the same perennial interest that poetry has. There are three great fields of essay—first, human nature; second, external nature; third, fine art. The first has two sides, the serious or philosophical and the second, the fascinating movement and play of it. Self-revelation has become a subject of essays. Landscape has become the modern subject of external nature.

Professor Bradley concluded his lecture by saying that the essay has a great future for it.

MISDEMEANOR EMBEZZLEMENT.

Mrs. Connolly of West Berkeley in Trouble.

Mrs. Mary Sullivan Out of Twenty-four Dollars.

Mrs. Kate Connolly, wife of John Connolly of Carlton street and San Pablo avenue, has been arrested on a charge of misdemeanor embezzlement on complaint of Mary Sullivan. According to the complainant, Mrs. Connolly represented she was in the house-renting business and offered to rent Mrs. Sullivan a fine house for $8 per month, provided she would pay three month's rent in advance. Mrs. Sullivan says she paid the money but neglected to get a receipt and that when she went to take possession of the house was confronted by the owner, who informed her that she had been swindled.

Mrs. Connolly was taken to the Oakland city prison, whence she was released on $100 bonds, John Vasey and Margaret Sullivan qualifying as sureties.

The Connollys claim that the only financial transaction that took place was the payment to Mrs. Connolly of $3 deposit on the rent of a house from which the occupants subsequently refused to move.

Woodsum Not a Candidate.

Says the Call: George C. Woodsum of Berkeley, who was formerly a deputy under County Clerk Jordan, says he is not a candidate for any office and does not expect to be. A few months ago Mr. Woodsum caused it to be understood that he would be a candidate for County Clerk, but he now declares he has abandoned all such intention.

A FIRE-ALARM SYSTEM.

It is quite true that considerable money has been spent on the Fire Department within the past few months, but no one can well say the expenditure has not been justified. It is now in order for the Trustees to complete the good work so far as is practicable. A fire-alarm system is badly needed and as the telephone arrangement seems to answer the purpose and, moreover, is extremely economical, it should be adopted. Berkeley can well afford to spend a few hundred dollars, if by so doing several times the amount can be saved.

THE SEVENTH HEAVEN.

The Oakland Tribune says: "A corner section of that 'seventh heaven of delight' is located in Berkeley at the present time. Decisive victories over both Stanford and Nevada in one day is about as much pleasure as can be conjured up at a time."

Perhaps Berkeley's cup of joy was full, but there is those who think Oakland might have been placed with Stanford and Nevada, to the increase of our pleasure. Last Saturday would have been a good day for Oakland to take a beating from Berkeley—the Athens would have been in such distinguished company.

WEST END IMPROVEMENTS.

What has become of that proposition to improve the streets of West Berkeley? It seems to perfectly feasible, would be an important improvement, and so far as known is acceptable to the people of the West End. We would suggest that it be revived and an energetic attempt made to carry it into execution. With improved streets, West Berkeley would be the gainer in every way. As for the cost it would be so trifling as to hardly merit consideration. It is to be hoped that at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees steps will be taken to adopt the plan.

A DESPERATE REMEDY.

Oakland's death rate has increased to a considerable extent during the past few months. The increase is due to the annexed district, the residents of which were taken in against their will. It does look as if people are so anxious to get out of the "Athens of the Pacific" that they are willing to die to gain the desired relief.

AMPLE CONFIRMATION.

The report of Health Officer Rowell which was presented to the Board of Trustees last night is ample confirmation of the statements published in the GAZETTE to the effect that Berkeley is in no danger of an epidemic of typhoid, and that the city is in every way perfectly healthful. Those who are responsible for having originated the scare owe it to the community to repair the harm they have done.

A GRACEFUL COMPLIMENT.

The changing of the name of part of Bristol street to that of Hearst avenue is a graceful compliment to one of the most public-spirited women of the end of the century. By tendering this compliment Berkeley has honored itself as well as Mrs. Hearst.

Cheer Up!

"That luminous paint is a great invention."

"What do you use it for?"

"We paint the baby, so that we can give him a drink in the night without lighting the lamp."

"Oh, MacDough, I must let Captain Carew know at once!" cried Ruth, wild with excitement.
"Khodia asked if he were in London, but I did not know his address, so I promised to tell you," returned MacDough.
"I am dreadfully afraid he has gone to Leeds. I know he wanted to see the colonel of his regiment. What shall we do? I will go myself." She wrung her hands.
"Oh, Miss Ruth, is it that bad?" exclaimed MacDough, struck with her gesture and expression.
"Bad," she repeated.
"Nothing can be worse. Captain Carew is accused of forging my brother's signature to a check and no one can disprove it but Mr. Hastings. Captain Carew accuses the nurse, Mrs. Somers, wished to prevent him from seeing my brother."
"God knows! Khodia says she is a real she devil," said MacDough.
"It's most unfortunate that my mother is not at home. My aunt, her only sister, is very ill and sent for her last evening. Tomorrow I will go myself to Mr. Heartwell. He will know what to do. My mother is in Hopedale, and she recommended the postmaster."

"MacDough!" she called. He stopped. "Oh, Miss Ruth, I have grand news for you. Come down and open the door to me."
"I will come quickly," she hastily threw on a dressing gown and lit her candle. Going rapidly down stairs, she unlocked the front door and admitted MacDough, observing even in her excitement that he had an odd, uneasy look as if not quite so sober, but she knew he was a total abstainer. He had probably hurried too much, for he was breathless.
"Here, Miss Ruth, it's all right. They have sent for you," cried MacDough, and he thrust a telegram into her hand.
"For me?" she cried, tearing it open and reading.
"To Miss Hastings, the Grange, Brookline Park, Harvard."
"Come to your brother, James Hastings, at once," it said.
"Oh, think! think!" she exclaimed, catching at MacDough's arm to support herself. "Just the man to tell me. How shall I go? How did you get this at such a time?"
"It's very extraordinary. They must have some one in power to help them," returned MacDough, drawing his hat across his brow. "It's only a few minutes since I had it. The single of the bell roused me. I sleep next the office. I turned out in a jiffy for I thought it was something out of the way passing, and then came the message. I've run here every step, and now I'll sit down and rest a bit while you get ready."

He sank on an oak-leaved settee which stood near the door. Ruth, trembling with hope and fear in dread of her impending interview with the formidable nurse and determined to brave all and everything for Val's sake, hurried to the butler's room, from whence came another message.
"Brett!" called Ruth, knocking on the door with a stick she had caught up from the umbrella stand. "What?"
"Oh! What?" asked Ruth, vision at last. "Is the house on fire?"
"Get up, Brett, and dress. Don't come downstairs until I call you."

"Oh, Lord, is it you, miss? I'll be ready in five minutes."
In a short time the whole household was afoot, the groom roused, the pointers got ready and a busy breakfast prepared. The earliest train they could catch was one which halted at Nutfield, some five miles off, and this Ruth decided to catch. MacDough, however, who it appeared, had dozed on the settee, seemed much refreshed by a cup of tea, and having exhorted Miss Hastings to be sure and put the telegram in her pocket he departed homeward after an emphatic "God bless you, God send you success," addressed to Ruth.

The summer of 1907 is younger and well be imagined—the growing anxiety, the dread of arriving too late, the seeming slowness of the swift express. From Nutfield she had the pleasure of riding to telegraph to Carew's solicitor. At the time they reached Navesse, Ruth could scarcely speak. Brett, however, soon found a cab for his young mistress, and a few more minutes brought them to the door of James Hastings' temporary abode.

The moment the cab stopped the door was opened by a respectable-looking man, not a servant, but a gentleman, a true thirty person with varnished eyes. He looked greatly surprised to see Ruth, closely followed by Brett, and asked the stepman paused because he blocked the way.

"Mrs. Smithson and I, your back yet."
"I suppose that is returned. Ruth is thirty. That's the reason she has telegraphed for me," and she held out the telegram for his inspection.
"Oh, oh!" exclaimed the man as if puzzled. "It is all right then. Come in. Is this person, by the way, your brother?"

"No, my brother—the man who had admitted her. He is in a very poor way." "Ah, you are disappointed."
"Fam."
"What is your name?"
"Johnson."
"Then show me to his room and tell him I am sent by Mrs. Smithson."

Ruth herself was amazed at the change of authority she threw into her room. Johnson led her way up stairs and entered a large room, looking for the first time at the nurse, who was seated at her dressing table, and a woman who had been her brother's nurse.

She looked at Ruth with a strange expression, and then, with a look of surprise, she said: "That night Ruth, who was worn out with anxiety and emotion, fell asleep, but she had only a brief respite, from trouble."

She awoke considerably before dawn, and her further sleep was impossible. How long she watched for the first glimpse of light she could not tell, and when the faint gray light of morning was revealing the forms of free and bush she heard a familiar sound, which roused her to intense attention. It was the click of the latch that fastened the entrance gate, repeated more loudly after the interval of a second, as if the gate had been hastily thrust open.

If the gate had been hastily thrust open, Ruth rose hastily and opened her window as a tall figure came round the bend in the approach. The figure was so familiar. Even in the dim light she recognized the postmaster.
